One very minor addition I might make is in the section on expanding definition of retail in the villages section, and making the point that a wider range of ground-floor uses can activate the street and be part of a walkable community, I might expand that to include second floors as well because they are often considered "sub-prime retail" good for uses that don't need actual street front presence, but do want to be visible and accessible from the street. Medical uses, community facilities, schools, even health and fitness, yoga, spas, etc fall into these categories.
